

They stopped attacking the bank when they realised the customer was easier.

HyperGuard is the multi-agent swarm that picks up the phone in the seconds between Send and settlement, holding the transfer, calling the customer mid-transaction, and waking the people who love them, before the money leaves.

94% of fraud losses are payments the victim authorised themselves. Nothing was stolen. It was given.	60s is the whole scam, between “I'll send it” and “sent.” No human team is inside that window at 2am.	0 existing shields intervene. They detect and report; both happen after the money has moved.
